"We're proud of E-ONE's network of loyal customers around the world as well as all our past and present

In 1974 Bob Wormser founded Emergency One, Inc., now known as E-ONE and introduced the first modular extruded aluminum fire truck body, which could be built separate from the chassis and loaded later. This launched the company's reputation in the fire industry for pioneering innovation, still evidenced 50 years later in the fire apparatus it produces for fire departments around the world.

E-ONE opened an 82,000 square foot production facility in Ocala in 1978 and in 1981 produced its first aerial, a 110' welded extruded aluminum aerial with integral torque box chassis.

Other major milestones from E-ONE's first 50 years include the following:

- 1983 - 95' platform and 135' ladder introduced - both part of the modular line of aerials
- 1990 - Opened 65,000 square foot Welcome Center/production facility
- 1994 - Introduced the HP 75 ladder with 500# tip load
- 2001 - HP 95 Mid-Mount introduced
- 2007 - HP 100 Platform released
- 2011 - eMAX pumper introduced
- 2017- Metro 100 Quint introduced
- 2020 - DND Air Transportable ARFF produced
- 2022 – All-Electric V

The company started in Ocala, FL and Hamburg, NY.
